A REPORT from El Reno, O. T., says:
"A town of 10,000 people, to be known as Lawton, grew up just outside the Fort Silas limit within a night."

JAMES B. BOLIN, of Owsley county, the oldest convict in the Frankfort penitentiary in point of service, was granted a parole by the State prison Commission after serving seventeen years of a life sentence for murder.

J. L. BRISTOW, Acting Fourth Postmaster General, yesterday removed Mrs.
Gertrude Sanders from the position of postmaster at New Castle Ky., and appointed J. P. Gray, Senator Debo's candidate, to succeed her.

The monthly report of Secretary Mc-Donald to the State Prison Commission shows a balance of $680.30 in the State Treasury as a result of the economical management of the Frankfort and Eddyville penitentiaries.

fer a favor as well as a benefit upon the Republican party, and is hereby respectfully urged so to do by the REPUBLICANS OF THIRD WARD.

Stole $340,000 In Bullion.
Near San Francisco Tuesday night, thieves stole from the Selby Smelting Works, at Vallejo, $340,000 in gold bullion. The thieves accomplished the work by tunnelling under the works and gained access to the strong room where bullion was stored. The works are located close to San Francisco Bay, and the tunnel extended from the water's edge to the building. It is supposed that the thieves took their plunder away by boat.

Lowering Device.
Wm. Milford, the undertaker, has invented a machine for lowering coffins into the grave, that is useless and does away with all ropes and other disagreeable accessories of the burial of the dead. It has met the approbation of all who have tried it.—Kentucky Gazette.
Our local undertakers have been using this device for several years, but no one on whom it has been used has expressed an opinion in regard to it.

The Horse Bonnet.
The horse bonnet, one of the most humane things ever invented, has struck Paris. It is a straw hat for the animal, intended to protect him from the burning rays of the sun and is such a sensible thing that it will be generally in vogue.
It is a sort of a cross between a sunbonnet and a cocked straw hat for men that is so popular this summer. It is fastened directly over the animal's head, and the ears pass through holes in the bonnet cut for that purpose. In many cases the holes are lined with flannel to prevent chafing. The hat ties around the horse's neck like an old-fashioned bonnet. It is unquestionably of the greatest use.

HOUSEWORK

Too much housework wrecks women's nerves. And the constant care of children, day and night, is often too trying for even a strong woman. A haggard face tells the story of the overworked housewife and mother. Deranged menses, leucorrhoea and falling of the womb result from overwork.
Every housewife needs a remedy to regulate her menses and to keep her sensitive female organs in perfect condition.

WINE OF CARDUI

is doing this for thousands of American women to-day. It cures Mrs. Jones and that is why she writes this frank letter:

Glendens, Ky., Feb. 10, 1901.
I am so glad that your Wine of Cardui is helping me. Last feeling better than I have felt for years. I am doing my own work without any help, and I washed last week and was not one bit tired. That alone tells the Wine of Cardui is doing me good. I am getting fresher than I ever was before, and sleep good and easy. Before I began using Wine of Cardui, I used to have to lay down five or six times every day. Now I do not think of lying down throughout the day.

Question Answered.

Yes Angust Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mother and grandmother never thought of using anything else for Indigestion or Biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appendicitis, Nervous Prostration, Heart failure, etc. They used Angust Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling drowsy with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's Angust Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied that there is nothing so useful as the medicine with you. Get Green's Prize Almanac.—W. T. Brooks.

A Fable For Women.

There was once a Woman who felt that her Husband stood out too late at Night. She therefore Devised a Plan to Cure him of this. Her Plan was to Rise Early in order to insure his Retiring Early.

"Only in this Way will he be able to get Enough Sleep," she said.
Her Husband, who usually Endeavored to Please her, rose Without Complaint at Six O'clock, but Continued to stay Out Late. Perceiving that her Purpose was not Accomplished, the Woman changed the Hour to Five O'clock.

"The Morning Hours are the Best for Work," she said, "and I understand that the Morning Air possesses Great Virtues."

Her Husband Objected, but Rose at Five, as she Wished.

Still he continued to Come In Late.
Then the Woman fixed the Hour at Four-thirty.

"I have always enjoyed Seeing the Sun Rise," she said.

"In that Case," said her Husband decidedly, "I Shall Not get to bed At All, since it would Not be Worth my While. I will Stay up All Night and the Afternoon. So We will have Breakfast at Three O'clock if we can."

This teaches us that the Early Worm will Turn.—Century.

Always Willing to Oblige.
It was a Texas town, and a long limbed Texan was making across the public square toward the courthouse with a revolver in his hand when he was stopped by a man who asked:

"Are you on your way to the courthouse?"

"Yes, sir; I am," was the reply.

"Going to shoot anybody?"

"Yes, sir; Lawyer Johnson. If it hadn't been for him, I shouldn't have lost my case yesterday. Yes, sir; going to fill him full of lead."

"Are you in any great hurry about it?"

"No special hurry, but when I have shooting on hand I like to get it off my mind as soon as possible."

"Of course; but you see, Lawyer Johnson is now arguing a case for me and won't be through for 40 minutes.
He's going to win it, and if not interrupted, and if you will only hold on for awhile you will do me a great favor."

"Why, certainly; glad you mentioned it; no hurry about the shooting so as it comes off today, and you can't get on me. Have a drink with you? With the greatest of pleasure, and if Johnson is a particular friend of yours I'll shoot him as softly as I can and give him every shot to die like a gentleman."—Boston Globe.

The Useful Telephone.

Two young ladies on St. Louis street went to the theatre the other evening, and their father, thinking they had a latchkey, went to bed at his usual hour, and the servants all left. When the ladies returned, they rang the bell repeatedly and beat on the door, but got no answer. Finally they began to despair, when a neighbor who had been awakened by the din appeared in white at his window opposite and asked what was the matter.

"We are locked out and cannot awake papa," came the reply in duet.

"Wait a minute," said the quick-witted man on the other side of the street.
"Your father has a telephone in his room, and I will call him up." So the central was called.

"Give me number —" said the neighbor.

As soon as the bell sounded in the room of the sleeping father awoke with a start and ran to the telephone.

"Hello, what is the matter?"

"Is that you, So-and-so?"

"Yes; what is wanted?"

"Your daughters are at the front door trying to get in. Open the door. Good night."—Baltimore Sun.

A Skeleton.

"What is a skeleton?" Can you tell me, children?" asked a teacher of her Sunday school class.

The infant class looked troubled.
Their ideas on the subject were of the most vague description and they seemed to think, hardly worth the censuring.
The question passed down the class almost to the very foot, meeting only a blank look or a shake of the head, until at last the smallest tot of all ventured a reply.

Consenting Orders.

"The average photographer," said Henck musically, "is an unreasonable creature."

"What's the matter now?" asked his friend.

"Oh, while my wife was sitting for her picture today the fool photographer sung out: 'Look pleasant, please. Be natural!'—Philadelphia Press.

Black Teeth.

The custom of women in Japan at marriage giving their teeth an everlasting coating of blacking is practiced now by only a small percentage, but there are still seen in the cities hundreds of women hideous with black ivory, and dentists' showcases contain sets of black teeth.

Coughing

use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I improved at once, and am now in perfect health."—Chas. E. Hart-Pectoral. It will cure you. W. T. Brooks.

Agrophobia.

Builders, with their stone and marble, brick and lime, water and sand, have left little puddles once strewn up Broadway. An irregular string of pedestrians flung itself past the place, ignoring for the most part the slight inconvenience of stepping over the miniature lakes. But one man, whose coat and waist situation, started back with an exclamation of vexation and passed around the pools.

"That chap has agrophobia," said one of two men who had noted the movement.

"The word?" asked the other.

"Agrophobia. It means simply an abhorrence of open spaces, and it has a great many victims. Specialists in this sort of nervousness say it takes various forms, some of its subjects having an insupportable dread of crossing from one side of the street to the other, while others have a disinclination to go more than a few blocks from their home.

"Some dread to step across a puddle of water, like the man we just saw.
Others dread descending into a well beyond a certain depth, and still others have a fear of getting too high in a building or an elevator. As a rule, the persons who are thus afflicted are so it is no mental disgrace to be a victim of agrophobia, simply a misfortune that is commoner than most personal supposes."—New York Telegram.

A Celebrated Roman Enter.

To-day the matter of setting the stories told by the old chroniclers and historians of the abnormal appetites of certain Roman and oriental men of note fairly stagger belief. Gibbon tells of Soliman, a caliph in the eighth century, who died of indigestion in his camp near Chalch, in Syria, just as he was about to lead an army of Arabs against Constantinople. He had emptied two baskets of eggs and figs, which he swallowed alternately, and the report was finished with marrow and sugar. In a pilgrimage to Mecca the same caliph had eaten with impunity at a single meal 70 pomegranates, a kid, 6 fowls and a huge quantity of the grapes of Syria.

Such statements would defy belief were not others of a similar character well attested. Louis XIV could hardly boast of an appetite as ravenous as Soliman's, but he would eat at a sitting of 100 different courses, a whole pheasant, a partridge, a plateful of salad, mutton hashed with garlic, two good sized slices of ham, a dish of pastry and finish with fruit and sweetmeats.

Fulfilling the Wishes of the Dead.
Old Lord Forglan, the Scotch Judge, died in 1727. Dr. Clerk, who attended his lordship to the last, calling on his patronage, he died, was admitted by the judge's old servant and clerk, David Reed. "How does my lord do?" inquired the doctor. "I hope he's well," responded the old man, whose voice and manner at once explained his reason for being there. Dr. Clerk used to have conducted Dr. Clerk into a room where there were two dozen bot-les of wine underneath the table.

Other gentlemen presently arrived, and, having partaken of a glass or two of wine, while they listened to David's account of his master's last hours, they all rose to depart. "No, no, gentlemen; not so," said the old factotum. "It was the expressed wish of the deceased that I should fill up a fon, and I must fulfill the will of the dead." Dr. Clerk used to add when relating the story, "And indeed he did fulfill the will of the dead, for before the end't there was na use of us able to bite his ain thumb!"

Jupiter and Ten.

A very ingenious and wealthy woman who was fond of talking about her "art gallery" one day met at the house of an acquaintance a lady who had not called on her, although they lived in the same town.

"Come and see me, do," said Mrs. B., the patron of art, as the other lady was taking her leave.

"I don't have very much," was the unconvincing reply.

"We've got a new picture too. That ought to tempt you to come, if I can't."
I should be very glad indeed to see it."

"Such a lovely picture! Sometimes it seems to me I could look at it all day long."

"What is the subject of your picture, Mrs. B.?" inquired the hostess.

"Jupiter and Ten," was the reply.

It was "Jupiter and Ten."

Polson In Finger Nail.

Biting the nails is an exceedingly dangerous practice, as the bitter never knows when to stop and at any moment is liable to bite into "the quick" and cause blood poisoning. Even when the utmost care is taken, the teeth and a poisonous secretion is apt to be on them, and the entrance of a minute portion of this into the circulation may prove as certainly fatal as the pus on a surgeon's scalpel.
